KUTSCH: One of the things that happened, one of the black students who was a real leader... and he said, ‘Would it be possible for the black students to live on the fourth floor? We have the white students who are interested come and join us.’ And I asked them there for their reasons. And I won't talk about exactly what they told me, but I think was pretty much [that] they have their own space, you know, and they have a place where they were very comfortable with each other. And so I said it would be okay.
