is not being carried out. The "rape of Germany" continues. Every intelligent officer and soldier knows it, but he is powerless to intervene. Denazification is not only cruel and terrible, but lacking in foresight to see we're laying the foundations for another inevitable war.

For the first twelve months of occupation a German could blame the Nazis for the general condition, but now he has turned, and justly lays the blame on us.

As to my work, I must confess that since my departure from Nürnberg, I've been idle, even though I could overwork in Nürnberg yet. Although I'm inclined to like the Army, I'm about ready to resign. Too bad we haven't the European system of having an Army Bishop who
